Mary Frances Ivey Hawkins

Plain Dealer, The (Cleveland, OH)

August 29, 1995

Mary Frances Ivey Hawkins was among the 119 women who were in the organizing class of the Navy's WAVES at Smith College, New Hampton, Mass., in August 1942. The WAVES - Women Accepted for Volunteer Emergency Service - was created by an act of Congress on July 30, 1942. Mrs. Hawkins was selected for the Navy's first female commissioned officers' cadre.

Mrs. Hawkins of Mentor died Sunday at Lake East Hospital in Painesville. She was 81. Mrs. Hawkins was born in Durham, N.C., and earned bachelor's and master's degrees in English from Duke University. She worked on a major publication of the life and works of Percy Bysshe Shelley. She also was on the faculty of Winthrop College in Rock Hill, S.C., before her Navy career.

Leaving Smith College, Mrs. Hawkins was assigned as the senior WAVES officer for procurement at Raleigh, N.C. Later, she became executive assistant director of Naval History in Washington, D.C. Mrs. Hawkins, who rose to the rank of lieutenant commander, worked with Naval historian Samuel Eliot Morison, author of the 15-volume History of U.S. Naval Operations in World War II.

A highlight of her Navy career was representing the WAVES and giving a speech on July 28, 1944, at the launching of the USS Southampton at the North Carolina Shipbuilding Co. yard in Wilmington, N.C.

"For the 14,000 ships afloat, there are over 70,000 WAVES at home, in Navy bases, in training schools, and in Washington, writing the letters that bring ships into being, carrying messages, supervising supplies, transmitting plans for action that will bring glory and victory to our Navy and to our flag," she said at the time.

Mrs. Hawkins married Robert Martin Hawkins of Cleveland on Jan. 20, 1945, in Washington, D.C. They met while he was serving in the armed forces induction station at Fort Bragg, N.C. The couple returned to Ohio in 1954 and have lived in Mentor for more than 40 years.

Mrs. Hawkins studied art at the Cleveland Institute of Art, taught English at Lake Erie College and was a member of the Mentor Library Board for three terms beginning in the 1950s. She was a member of the American Association of University Women.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Nancy Martha Reville of Deerfield Beach, Fla.; and a granddaughter.

There will be no services. Arrangements are by Brunner Funeral Home in Mentor.
